

Does your toddler have a peanut allergy?

Learn about a clinical study of a skin patch for the treatment of peanut allergy

If your child has or may have a peanut allergy, we ask you to consider the COMFORT Toddlers Study. The study will gather additional safety information on an investigational skin patch. It may help us to learn more about treating peanut allergy in toddlers in the future.

To take part in this study, your child must:

- Be between 1 and 3 years old
- Have, or likely have, a peanut allergy (based on an evaluation from their doctor)
- Be on a strict peanut-free diet
- Have access to emergency medications (including epinephrine device) and a current food allergy emergency action plan

There are other requirements to see if your toddler may be eligible to take part in the study. The study team will go over these with you to see if your child qualifies.

To learn more, please contact us or visit our website:

Children's Mercy Hospital
816-960-8904
Childrensmercy.org

Please scan this QR code with your smartphone to get additional information.

